Mehnn! The bass guitar player is wicked. Blasting his heart out. Lovely. Good old days. Music and Wisdom. Pay attention of the lyrics and the inviting beats. Oh So, Aseibu Amenfi was with this band. He has to receive award.

Dedication, more often than not, stems from gratitude and appreciation for kindness. The song "susu ma no Nye woode", by Nana Ampadu and African brothers was dedicated to Aba people; Samy Koffi and Okukuseku international band did same. Why? Because we did not only love their music; we loved and hosted them in our country, treated them like our own and ultimately made them reap the fruit of their labour. Koffi Samy left Nigeria as a rich and an accomplished artiste, thanks to our generosity.

@blacymee swiss : I agree with you. This part of Ghana's music industry's history is called the Rawlings' Dark Era for Live Bands, when curfew in Ghana during his revolutionary days nearly killed most of the live dance bands . To address this military problem, most of the Ghanaian bands relocated to Nigeria especially the Eastern part where the music scene was booming at the time. If you are a follower of good music and it's analysis, you would notice some clear Nigerian impact on this music, listen to the melodic special Nigeria
